Raisina, Delhi

The 4th June 1921.

My dear Mirza,

Just a line to inform you of my new address which is given at the top. The house occupied by me is one of the buildings adjoining the grounds of the Viceregal Palace and Secretariat buildings which are slowly taking majestic shape in red sandstone. I have to inspect the accounts of expenditure in connection with the construction of ^{the new} Imperial Delhi from the beginning & also the large Post and Telegraphs accounts office here. I proposed to inspect the Calcutta office about the beginning of August.

Orders were about to come posting me as Assistant Surgeon but luckily I escaped at the last moment and they found another victim for the transportation.
As I can take leave on full pay for eight months at any time and can voluntarily retire on pension at the end of that period, I cannot be forced to take a job I do not like and the authorities know it.

With best wishes and kindest regards,

I am
yours very sincerely

J. S. Chakravarti
